

Soul Scanning -- audio interview with 8th dimensional Guide

(Comment) Can you talk about your ability to do Soul Scanning?

C's guide used to scan some of my clients when we worked together before. We have come together again during this important shift. My role is the external helper during this process. The Host is sent off to theta trance at which time her eight dimensional guide enters her body. Interestingly, the eyes do not open. THE Host does not hear the conversation. The guide is able to scan the individual for carry-over energy which could be and incarnate or a past life energy. Often the guide can exit out this energy into the light. Some energies resist but the powerful eternal light of the universe prevails giving the system an immediate relief. The guide then scans the individual for chakra blockages from this life time. The guide will know the details of the stressor or abuse that occurred during childhood, even if it was precognitive. Sometimes the blocked chakra can be opened so some release can occur. The individual's own guide often becomes less overwhelmed and able to move the system toward greater balance. Otherwise the individual will need to continue in a healing process to safely and tolerably release and resolve the dissociated material preferably through the trance-work and personal mediation. Puzzling aspects of oneself are answered through this process.

When I come into this realm to speak, it takes a little while. What happens first is that I have to calm C's mind down-dissociate her. That's why she doesn't remember a lot. She is vaguely away because she has a high intellect. I have to dampen down her personality in order to come through. I am able to see everything (in the individual being scanned)-everything within a 55 foot radius. If I want to expand the conscious thought out, I could. It becomes more ineffectual the further it goes out. I can sense immediately if there is blocked off trauma. I explained before that the chakra system is like a tube of energy. We are basically motorized. We use to breathe through the chakra system before we breathed through our lungs. It is the light being. I can see this light body and I can immediately see...if it is really bright in certain areas, it means that there is a block there or there is an imbalance. (The guide will say that it sees a bright yellow which is showing a problem in the third chakra) It doesn't always have to be a block. I can also see if there is a past life energy. Normally it is two, three, or four, the chakras in that system. Sometimes I get it in the first-sometimes in the fifth. You are never going to see it in the seventh. Seven is the pineal gland. If that shuts off, you just die. There would be nothing.

The third eye chakra is usually how people can see---say that if you are in the dark, you can still sense something around you. If someone was to walk into that room silently, you could still feel their presence because you can sense things through the third eye. That is not part of the system holding trauma.

I have found in my work that most of the trauma and stress is blocked off in the second, third, and fourth chakra. The second holds the anxiety-panic-to terror as well as the sadness to despair. The third chakra carries the frustration-anger- to rage. The fourth tends to hold the hurt, blame, guilt, jealousy, abandonment, and rejection issues. So much work is done to heal the heart center.

Some people may have been told when they were small, "never speak of this". This cuts down their ability to speak.

The fifth chakra is often closed with early trauma; because of a dominating parent; along with the disposition of the child to constrict.

Chakra one can be blocked if they were terribly abused as an infant. For example, if the parents die in a car accident and they are only one month old. Babies have a sensory awareness enough to know that there is a differentiation... their sense of smell and sight is developing. All their senses are there. They are immature but they are still involved. The baby can sense when the mother is not there or has been taken away. That can create a trauma.

When I do the "scanning", I can immediately see that there is an issue. When I say that we can see things, from the past and the future, we deal with the one person we are dominant for. I have knowledge of what is coming up for the Host. I can't share that. That is not to be shared because it can change. It is always in motion. So can her past. I know that that may sound strange, but her past can change as well. Those things move in different time lines in my dimension then they do in yours. I could go back or forward wherever I wanted to go in her life and make changes. It sounds very strange but you have to believe me. When you are at this level you can do these things. In her mind it would automatically change. Everything would be different. We don't do that for obvious reasons. It could be very harmful to the Host (the conscious human).

However, since I can't always see the specifics of this life time trauma for some people, I can get a good idea. I usually know if it is a parental trauma or a sexual trauma from an outside source, or a physical or emotional or a verbal...you can sense these things. The past life trauma I know because they are on a different level. Their energy is trapped but it is always free form. They are not walking around in a body anymore. It is though they are sensory deprived so they are able to communicate dimensionally. I can actually see it. Once I have tuned in or them, they are so grateful to have someone like me that has the ability to take them in any direction they want to go to exit. Some resist, but most say, "get me out of here. I really want to exit." They realize that they have been stuck. They are able to sense that other people who have died moved immediately into the light and are surrounded by this peaceful warm glow and have just gone on. Now they are able to reincarnate, whatever THEY decide to do with that energy. We always are and always will be.

We need to move past that misconception that this is the only body we've got and we never change. Sometimes what happens is that these people that believe that get what they want. They literally don't go anywhere after they die. Sometimes they get stuck in another body and they are completely unhappy. Some are allowed to stay there for awhile so they can learn a lesson. If you want to be dead and have nothing, you will. You will have no say over it and you will be stuck inside this other human being that is a complete waste and is making a mockery of life. They say, "I have got to get out of here. I need to exit." Some of them are angry. They will manifest that in the human that they are hosting. Some of the past life energy can be extraordinarily strong. Maybe their life was cut short. (Many of the past life energies that the guide has exiting out recently have been young adults killed in the civil war)

The most important thing to remember about the child helpers and the past life energies is that they are usually allowed to exist within a human to help them to some extent. However, if they are not utilized in the proper order, it can create a vast array of difficulties for the Host.

It is important that humanity understand that developmental stages are triggered and they have to be played out in their proper order. There is a logical progression in humans and if they don't follow the logical progression based on their space time continuum, the system is completely disrupted.

The past energies can be there to help. Sometimes they latch on for more malignant purposes because they are stuck on the earthly third dimensional plane. (I have certainly seen over the years that the unresolved trauma carried by the past life entity can cause the current Host some severe and dramatic symptoms including reenactments of their unresolved trauma) They don't understand. Usually what I find with these past life energies is that they had very little spiritual ability. They didn't understand that when they die that they could move into "heaven", however they want to conceive it. It's never hell. They get stuck here. They are not ready to move. They stay. That is what creates ghost and other entities.

C's guide has always done CROSSROADING which is assisting energies that are stuck on the earthly plane but not attached to a human, to exit into the light. This is why it is important to be "light of heart" at the point of our death. When we worked together before, the guide would take a longer time to come through and would communicate that it helped an energy exit into the light. The guide along with other high levels guides with whom I have current contact with,, report that they have helped thousands of unattached energies exit during this incarnation. Most of the time they do this when the Host is sleeping. They tell me that the universe is hustling to clear out unresolved stress and trauma during this shift in consciousness to higher levels of awareness.
